PUBLIC HEARING FOR PROPOSED CHANGES IN THE ZONING BY-LAWS

A public hearing is to be held for proposed changes in the Zoning By-Laws on Tuesday, March 17th, at 7:30 P.M. at the Mattapoisett Town Hall.

A change proposed for the zoning by-law map will be discussed. The proposal is for changing the limited industrial area to run south of and parallel and adjoining Railroad Avenue. This is to give access to the area on a town owned road. A second change on Route 6 would change the lower part of the present limited industrial area to a general business district.

Several other minor changes are also proposed. See page 20 of the March 4th issue for the complete proposed changes.

N. B. Symphony

CONCERT BY NEW BEDFORD SYMPHONY

The final concert of the New Bedford Symphony's 1969-70 season is to be given on Sunday, March 15th, at Keith Junior High School, New Bedford, at 3:00 P.M. Tickets will be available at the door.

Faust Fiore, a flutist, will be soloist with the symphony. Mr. Fiore, a graduate of the New England Conservatory, is well-known in the area as a performer and director of music in the Fall River public schools.

John Pandolfi, conductor, will present the following program:

Tragic Overture in D minor, Op. 81..... Johannes Brahms

Flute Concerto No. 2 in D major..... W. A. Mozart

Girl Scout Week

The time is ripe for constructive and extensive improvement in our society.

Young people are the ones who will be active in changing our institutions.

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. is one organization that is teaching youth the positive approach to responsible citizenship. For 58 years, good citizenship has been part-and-parcel of the Girl Scout movement. So have been the teaching and learning of enduring values -- high standards to live by all one's life.

"AWARENESS - ACTION" is the theme Girl Scouts of the United States of America, the world's largest girl youth organization, has chosen for the next three years. During this Girl Scout Week, be aware of the active contributions the Girl Scouts are making in our own community and throughout the country. To the approximately four million

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP NOTES

The Pilgrim Youth Fellowship of Mattapoisett Congregational Church hosted a very successful social hour after Sunday's morning worship service. Coffee, fruit punch, doughnuts and cookies were served to a large group which included a contingent of forty-five Girl Scouts, Brownies and their adult leaders, observing Girl Scout Sunday.

As part of the church's traditional Easter Holy Week observances, the Pilgrim Fellowship has been asked to conduct the Monday

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I note that the town fathers of Mattapoisett and Fairhaven are debating the desirability of continuing aerial spraying of those communities with organo-phosporous poisons.

Although the futility of spraying and the disastrous environmental consequences of spraying are apparent to the ecologist perhaps we have spoken in muted tones.

The following quotation from the January issue of Environment should be comprehensible to anyone. I ask that the citizens of Mattapoisett and Fairhaven read the following before they vote to release a renewed rain of allegedly safe pesticides.

"Signs of Pesticide Poisoning were detected in nearly half of the farm children examined recently in Tulare County, California. According to United Press International, the signs of low-grade poisoning were detected in the children during a nutrition study of farm laborers and their children. Of the 58 children tested, 27 showed signs of poisoning by organic phosphorus poisons. Organic phosphates are used as insect killers on grapes, cotton, and other crops grown widely in California. Because they disappear quickly after use, phosphorus pesticides are the most common substitute for DDT."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Conservation Commission seems to have three favorite words: "You can't, don't, No!" Now it's "Don't spray for mosquito control," although much of Mattapoisett would be almost uninhabitable without the spray.

We think that the health and comfort of the people and especially the children of Mattapoisett should have precedence over birds, even if the birds were somewhat affected. However, the truth is that a very small number of birds were found dead after last year's first spray. So that while it cannot be proven that the first spray actually killed the birds found, it is known that after the second spray when the mixture was weakened slightly, no dead birds were found. Therefore, either the spray didn't kill any birds in the first place, or weakening the spray eliminated any problems, and there is no justification for not spraying.

We live in a cleaner, happier world as the result of awakened public and social sense of our ability and responsibility to control the destructive forces of nature. Except in the more backward parts of the world, man stands largely freed of the diseases, plagues and pestilence that ravaged the earth a mere hundred years ago. Not until this century have large numbers of us been able to expect that we will not be cut down early in life by disease or by famine from having crops ruined by insects and bacteria.

Only men so freed from the terrors of nature's destructive side could have the insouciance to suggest that we should retreat from the battle to control mosquitoes. Only people loaded with immunity of various kinds and overstuffed with good food would have the leisure to run around joining conservation commissions and rolling their moist eyes over the notion that we may be upsetting the ecology of dear Mother Nature. Have these people never heard of malaria, encephalitis, and various infections, not to mention allergic swelling from the happy little bite of the merry mosquito and other insects? Why do these people think every house built fifty years ago, even the simplest summer camp had a huge screened porch? Because, except in the burning midday sun or a gale of wind it was hell out-of-doors: that's why!

The "in" thing today is to talk of man's destruction of his environment; and the really highbrow sub-topic for discussion is this bit about unbalancing the ecology of nature. Wherefore we have all kinds of zealots racing around declaiming against the slightest disturbance of any swamp-hole (euphemistically termed wet lands), eulogizing every living plant and creature, and sadistically suggesting that we should all crowd into high-rise apartments so that there will be more "open spaces" for walking around and watching birdies, snakes, or whatever. One can very realistically expect any day now to see a move to save the rat from extinction, or to preserve poison ivy for the delectation of those birds which relish its berries.

These things have to be put into perspective. As members of the human race, our first duty is to our kind. First, we must be sure that nature is not going to overwhelm us. Then we must make nature serve us, which means that we don't want to destroy anything animate or inanimate which is beneficial to the human race. Further, we of course wish to preserve substantial portions of nature for the enjoyment and refreshment of posterity. But let us not forget in a rash of conservationism that nature is not, never was pure beneficence. Nature is incredibly cruel and destructive; an amalgamation of blind forces constantly warring on each other and on us, over which it is a miracle that we have achieved our current ascendancy. We have been winning but let's not get too soft. Let's not turn our backs on the pests just yet.

As for the conservationists, says Professor Francois Bourliere, president of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources: "The conservationists must rise above the 'emotional' or purely zoological or botanical state they have so far cultivated. They must share their experiences and combine their efforts with the agriculturalists, the town planners, the welfare workers, and the economists. Nature will not be saved against man, but with his cooperation and for his own sake." (From A New Balance Between Man and Nature by Prof. F. Bourliere).

Voyage of The Manta

The last complete whaling venture from the port of New Bedford, Mass.

Wednesday, July 22nd - Squall came up this morning and it is very rough. Hope this weather keeps up. The officers all have long faces to-day. Here's hoping I'll see you all soon. Very rough this P.M. All work stopped and everything made fast. Forestay sail reefed, jib in straight jacket. Talk about mountains of water, we have them to-day, the wind whips the top of the waves right off. This blubber has been on board several days now and what a rotten filthy stench. It stinks so bad it makes my throat burn. I can taste it all the time. Oh, what slime and scum, and we are living right in it. I can't write about it, it's so rotten. Rain. Can't sleep a wink. Sweltering hot.

Thursday, July 23rd - Plenty of rain. Very squally. Put fires out. Blubber washed overboard. Cleared a little. Started fires again and tried to save what we could. Still riding out storm. Jib is still in straight jacket. Whales all round ship. If it's clear I suppose we will lower tomorrow. Cleaned up on whale scrubbed decks and put away casks.

Friday, July 24th - Whales sighted at 5-10. Hoist and swing at 6:15. Both boats are now fast. Not even one day of rest. My clothes are rotten dirty. Turned my stomach when I put them on this morning. Nice day. All kinds of rumors as to when we will be going home going around the ship. One is that Mate has to be in New Bedford by the 6th of August. How I do hope it's true. Hoist and swing. Each boat got a whale. Starboard boat crew came back covered with blood. Heave and slip. Little excitement, thought we struck embergrease (sic) but turned out to be a young calf, just about to be born. Been dreaming of home again. Lopes told Jack today that we would get all the whale we could before August 1st. Then we will sail for home. Just had dinner after 4 o'clock. Had to go down hole and move casks to pump water and oil. What a job. No flour, no hardtack or beans, just because they wouldn't take the time to break them out. What a hopeless life. How any man, white or black, can be satisfied to live this life I don't understand. Had supper tonight long after dark, so turned in with the starboard watch. After I had been in bed for some time, the mate roused me out and put me to work again. Just got through. No idea what time it is. Well, it can't last much longer. Oh, but I'm dirty. Cleaned myself best I could with pages torn from a magazine. That's what I use to clean my mess kit with. The way these people act over a whale you might think it was made of gold.

Saturday, July 25th - Hot!! Hoist and swing. Whales went to windward. Got up before I was called this morning so that I could wash myself. I hadn't washed for 4 or 5 days. Both Mates bawled me out. What do you want to wash for, you will only get dirty again. Then the Captain and the Mate are always calling us lousy and asking us if we have skin lice. Also, telling us to keep our skin clean. Kerosene in the hash tonight. So, we had a light supper. Thank God this was one day without getting whale.

Sunday, July 26th - Wind, rain and thunder. Finished blubber, starting to clean up. No whale to-day so far. Only expect to spend another Sunday out here. Hoist and swing at 1:45. Boats back at 3:45. Larboard boat 1 small whale. Used 1 block to take it in. Starboard boat got fast but both boats got fore bow to bow and they had to cut loose. Did not get fast again. Lost half tub of line. Broke out new whaleline at night. Lightning and thunder struck us at 11 P.M. Light on the horizon sending up rockets. Wonder where I will be two weeks from today. I can't get time to do a little sewing. Monday, July 27th - Steamer in distress last night. Close. Captain jibed over and got away from it, still in sight from masthead this morning at 5:00. Boys trying on their gohomes, getting ready to leave. We are supposed to start back Saturday. Captain questioned Dwyer about his citizenship and gave him lots of tobacco. Everyone is talking of going home. But we cannot get anything definite. Stood masthead 3 watches today. No sign of whale. Ill. Haven't touched the last whale we got, still lying on deck. Fish, fish, fish in hash and everything else. Boiled. Got a stinking whale jaw on deck right over our quarters. They let the jaw rot till it gets soft, then pull out the teeth. It turns green. And smell!!!!
